

The Lehigh Valley Section of the Pennsylvania Planning Association Presents,

“What you Need to Know About the new Open Records Law and.....

2009 Land Use Law Update including case law and new policy reviews”

Wednesday June 24th starting at 6 p.m. at the

Please join the members of the Lehigh Valley Section of the Pennsylvania Planning Association at the Allentown Brew Works for a social and educational experience that you should not miss. Whether you are a planner, engineer, architect, landscape architect, municipal official or citizen planner, this event is for you! Renowned Harrisburg Land Use Law Attorney and Professional Planner, Susan Smith, Esq., AICP*, will provide an insightful presentation on the new Open Records Law! In addition, she will review major case law decisions in the subject areas of land use law, natural resources, infrastructure, utilities and housing. After over a year of work, the General Assembly passed SB 1, the Open Records Law (“Law”) as a comprehensive overhaul of the Commonwealth’s much maligned Right-to-Know Act. Governor Rendell signed SB 1 as Act 3 of 2008 on February 14, 2008. The Act took effect on January 1, 2009.

Susan J. Smith, Esq., AICP advises and represents private and municipal clients in land use, municipal, environmental and public utility matters before municipalities and municipal authorities, the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protections, the courts of the Commonwealth and the federal courts. Ms. Smith is certified by the American Institute of Certified Planners. She is a frequent presenter and author of published materials related to land use and land use regulation. She has served as an adjunct professor of land use law at Temple University.

This Program is Approved for 1.5 CM Credits for all AICP Certified Planners
