

What is the Pipeline Information Center?

The Pipeline Information Center is a website that is designed to provide relevant and current information on pipeline activity in Chester County.

The Chester County Planning Commission maintains the Pipeline Information Center and serves as the County's Point of Contact for interaction and information exchange with residents, landowners, operators, non-profits and regulatory agencies.

What you can find on the website

- Active Pipeline Projects

Current pipeline projects proposed in Chester County including location, project description, and updates on the project status.

- Landowners Resources

Resources for landowners and residents, particularly those who may have an existing or proposed pipeline right-of-way on their property.

- Upcoming Events

Upcoming pipeline related events and important dates and deadlines.

- Pipelines in the News

Articles about pipeline projects and other related news of local interest.

- Pipeline Safety

One of the most common concerns raised by residents is pipeline safety. A wide range of pipeline safety resources and information is provided here.

- Regulatory Agencies

The website provides an overview of the often complicated pipeline regulatory process.

- Pipeline Operators

Contact information for transmission pipeline operators is available on both the Pipeline Operators page and through the interactive Pipeline Map.

- Contacts, Links & Resources

Information and links are provided for: County, federal, regional, state and local agencies; pipeline operators located within Chester County; and non-profit pipeline safety organizations.

- Pipeline Mapping

Our mapping information provides users with an interactive mapping experience that allows them to search for their location relative to nearby pipelines. A pop-up box provides additional information on the pipeline product type and operator.
