Pennsylvania Economic Development Institute and PEDA Present:

Redeveloping Blighted Properties: Financing Solutions

May 8, 2013

2:00 pm – 3:30 pm

Web Seminar

REDEVELOPING BLIGHTED PROPERTIES: FINANCING SOLUTIONS

This seminar will feature a detailed review of public financing programs including federal and state tax credit programs designed to leverage private investment. Several detailed case studies will be profiled that illustrate how public and private funding is blended to successfully accomplish the redevelopment of deteriorated commercial and residential properties in and around downtown areas. The seminar is targeted at economic and community development professionals, local public officials, private and non-profit developers and other community stakeholders.

The seminar will feature:

- A detailed presentation on the most useful state and federal grant/loan/tax abatement programs to accomplish redevelopment of deteriorated properties
- A detailed presentation on state and federal tax credit programs that will help communities leverage private investment
- How to evaluate the project to determine the appropriate amount of private investment so as to minimize the amount of public financing needed to accomplish the project
- Key points to emphasize in funding requests for public financing
- How to use the availability of public financing to attract a private developer
- How to best leverage bank funds in redevelopment projects

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT UNITS

This event qualifies for 1.5 organizational PDUs (Finance) through the Pennsylvania Economic Development Institute (Institute).*

PRESENTER: CHRISTOPHER GULOTTA

Mr. Christopher Gulotta, a recognized expert on packaging public and private financing, served as Executive Director of the Redevelopment and Housing Authorities of Cumberland County for thirty years between 1980 and 2010. During his tenure, he was responsible for developing and implementing housing and community development strategies for Cumberland and Perry Counties. His efforts were recognized, with twenty-five of his organization's projects receiving national and state awards, each of which focused on demonstrated innovation and a large degree of leveraged private funding.

Mr. Gulotta is a graduate of Dickinson College, the Penn State University Masters Degree Program in Urban and Regional Planning, and the Dickinson School of Law. He has served on several statewide and regional boards and, throughout his career, has received numerous awards, among them the 2010 Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Supportive Housing Award, the 2008 Leadership Award from the Housing Alliance of Pennsylvania, and the 2009 Distinguished Alumni Award from Dickinson College.
