WHAT TO EXPECT

This Land Use Law and Ethics Workshop is sure to benefit you in many ways. The morning session offers an in-depth review of significant land use decisions issued by the Commonwealth and Supreme Courts of PA since the Fall of 2012. An overview of decisions made by the PA Courts of Common Pleas, the Federal Courts of the Third Circuit sitting in PA, and PA administrative agencies, that are of general interest to municipal planners, will also be presented.

The afternoon session will provide a detailed look at the ethics rules governing planners, including the AICP Code of Ethics and the PA Ethics Act. The presenter will review the general rules of conduct and how professionals should operate their business, as well as cover investigation and enforcement procedures. An overview of common ethical issues that arise in the public setting will also be presented.

PRESENTERS

Susan J. Smith, Esquire, The Law Office of Susan J. Smith

Ms. Smith practices in the areas of land use, municipal, environmental and public utility law before municipalities, Commonwealth agencies, and the Pennsylvania and Federal courts and on behalf of private, corporate and municipal clients. She serves as solicitor and special counsel to municipalities throughout the Commonwealth. She served as a judicial law clerk to the Honorable Genevieve Blatt of the Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania. Prior to practicing law, Ms. Smith was a professional and municipal land use planner, including Zoning Administrator of the City of Charleston, South Carolina. She obtained her J.D. from the University of North Carolina School of Law and masters and undergraduate diplomas and degrees from the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, and Dickinson College. Ms. Smith regularly lectures to legal and non-legal professionals and taught land use law at Ambler College, Temple University.

Matt Haverstick, Esquire Partner at Conrad O'Brien PC

Mr. Haverstick represents government officials and entities in matters ranging from public corruption investigations to the constitutionality of various state and local laws. In addition, he represents public institutions, from State agencies, charter schools and the legislative branch itself, through major corruption and white collar investigations. Beyond his white collar and corruption practice, Mr. Haverstick has a thriving practice representing government in critical political and governmental litigation on issues that are at the forefront of public policy debate in Pennsylvania, particularly in matters before Supreme and Commonwealth courts. Matt obtained his J.D. from Fordham University Law School and his B.A. from Bucknell University.
